

Investment Weekly

For the week ended May 09, 2025

Commentary

Weekly summary: No surprises from the Fed but easing trade tensions helped markets.

Markets review

- U.S. equities were mixed as large caps fell but mid and small caps rose. However, the S&P Equal Weight Index outperformed the market cap weighted index, indicating a greater breadth of participants. Health care and communication services were the biggest losers while industrials increased the most. For the most part, value outperformed growth. Europe fell and Asia rose in overseas markets.
- Treasuries were mixed with yield curve flattening. The U.S. Agg is still up over 200 bp for the year.
- The dollar was stronger, as was gold.
- Oil was up despite OPEC+ announcing an output acceleration.

Economic review

- There were positive tariff developments this week after the White House announced a framework agreement with the U.K. The U.S. and China were set to hold initial trade talks this weekend, and the White House considered cutting China tariffs to ~50%.
- The Fed held rates steady at 4.25-4.50%, as expected. In his comments, Powell offered little on the possibility of a June cut as tariff impacts were not in the data yet. Overall, the market is currently pricing in less than 70 bp of Fed easing this year.
- April ISM Services topped forecasts, though uncertainty and higher prices remained in focus.
- Jobless claims declined week-over-week.
- The latest N.Y. Fed survey showed rising inflation uncertainty coupled with deteriorating labor market expectations.

Earnings review

- 1Q25 earnings: With 90% of the S&P 500 companies reported, the blended earnings growth rate was 14.1% and the revenue growth rate was 4.9%. Seventy-six percent of S&P 500 companies beat consensus EPS expectations and 62% surpassed consensus sales expectations according to LSEG.
